Combating antimicrobial resistance (AMR)

We believe that each and every one of us should become a superhero in this fight against AMR. We partner with young children in India to empower them with knowledge about AMR and to develop educational tools about AMR, in the form of Grassroots Comics. Grassroots Comics are simply comics that tell a local story. They are a communication tool for all citizens that can transcend the barriers of language, literacy and media access. The infectious enthusiasm of the children who have attended our workshops was the motivation behind the success of this program, and we are hopeful that the work by these children will inspire others to take action against antimicrobial resistance. Because all of us need to be resistance fighters.
